The smaller parks and gardens are described in one page with the larger gardens getting more pages. There is some mention of the types of plants found in the gardens.

London is one the world's greenest capital cities, with a wealth of places where you can relax and recharge your batteries. Britain is renowned for its parks and gardens, and nowhere has such beautiful and varied green spaces as London: magnificent royal parks, historic garden cemeteries, majestic ancient forests and woodlands, breathtaking formal country parks, expansive commons, charming small gardens, beautiful garden squares and enchanting 'secret' gardens.

About the AuthorRobbi Atilgan moved trained as a journalist and spent over two decades working in the fields of arts, music and entertainment, from a stint on the rock press to the more sedate world of freelance editing. She has written and contributed to a number of books on culture and travel (particularly regarding London) . Robbi lives in southeast London. David Hampshire's career has taken him around the world and he lived and worked in many countries before taking up writing full-time in the '80s. He is the author, co-author or editor of over 20 titles, including Living and Working in London, London's Hidden Secrets (volume 2) and London's Secret Places. David lived in London for many years but now lives in Bath (England).
