Lonely Planet : Lonely Planet Barcelona City Map (Travel Guide) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Lonely Planet Barcelona City Map (Travel Guide):

It's about Barcelona, 2.) It's got a public transportation map! 3.) "Waterproof" Let's see how it measured up. 1.) Barcelona... 2 1/2 stars out of 5. It's a map that focuses on a portion of Barcelona. (What's thought of by some, to be the only area where "tourists" will go.) It doesn't actually cover all of Barcelona.. Just some of the "touristy" area. (La Rambla, Gaudí, etc) Don't expect to be able to go all over Barcelona with this map. 2.) It's got a public transportation map Yes it does .. Glad about that, but slightly limited, due to point #1. 3.) Waterproof... Ugh... That'd be a NO! I haven't actually used it in the rain or put water on it because just looking at it and feeling the composition of it, leads me to see it's NOT WATERPROOF!! Which all of these things amaze me; because Lonely Planet is usually geared towards the traveler who'll do some touristy things, but also goes off the beaten path.. Including getting caught in the rain. This map was not what I was expecting from Lonely Planet. The only reason I didn't send it back yet, was because of the public transportation map. It does have an area about Madrid, which I personally would have preferred it to NOT have, any time something (in this case a map) tries to be multipurpose.. It usually fails in one area or more. They could've used that space more widely. I would have gotten a separate map for Madrid, if I wanted/needed one. Bottom line: I don't think I'd buy this map had I'd known all of these points!! Searching for a good map. National Geographic has some good maps that are actually waterproof and tear resistant.. But haven't found a Barcelona one yet!
