Lonely Planet, Kerry Christiani : Lonely Planet Pocket Lisbon (Travel Guide) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Lonely Planet Pocket Lisbon (Travel Guide):

This pocket size guide has a map and also a very good amount of info about all of the major sights and facts about Lisbon. I purchased this book mostly for its form factor and publish date to make sure all information is current. 4 of 4 people found the following review helpful. Good guidance - without maps By Kindle Customer This book directed us to the excellent Lisbon restaurant, 100 Manieras. For that service alone, it deserves a couple of stars. As for the rest of the book, it does a fine job, as you would expect. There is one serious downside: The book contains links to Offline Maps as well as Google Maps next to each site, place, monument, shop etc. However, none of those links work in the Kindle edition. Instead of a map, what you get is the Oxford Dictionary explanation of the word "Offline"! And that always happens your Kindle, and sometimes when you read the book on a PC. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Great Guide. By delayedFLIGHT Great pocket guide! Had plenty of options, tips, hints, etc. for my girlfriend and I to check out during our stay in Lisbon. The fold out city map is a nice feature.

About the Author Big wilderness, the promise of snow in winter and a husband born in Villingen lured Kerry from London to the Black Forest four years ago. When not on the road, Kerry can be found hiking, cycling or cross-country skiing in the woods and hills close to her home. On recent research she was delighted to rediscover Baden-Wurttemberg, from canoeing on Lake Constance to testing (well it would be rude not to!) Black Forest cake in Triberg. Kerry's incurably itchy feet have taken her to some 40 countries, inspiring numerous travel articles, online features and around 15 guidebooks, including Lonely Planet's guides to Austria, Switzerland, Munich, Bavaria the Black Forest and Portugal.
